Miss Lillian Myners

Miss Lillian Myners we dedicate this Retrospectus to you in honor of your own dedication to our students, not only in this our most modern development of Davenport Institutions but to its predecessors as well. You have taught here, giving relevant skills to students, for thirty-eight years.

These two pages are merely a symbol of our appreciation to you, they cannot hope to do justice to your unstinted efforts. You have been honored in times past, such as in 1965 when Lillian Myners Hall was named in your honor. This is only one of many efforts to show you our esteem. The greatest honor, however, is the memories of your devotion to the motto of our college in the minds of our past graduates and present student body. You have enabled many thousands to find a life and make a contribution to society based on your lively life force and dedication.
You have seen Davenport College of Business grow and prosper and have cherished many memories along the way. You do remember the open air classes you held at the "Pre-air-conditioning" affiliate college the University of Grand Rapids. You know of the progress of students who graduated and no doubt remember Bonnie McAllister of the class of '49', Bonnie Glover of '61' and Diana Kelder of 1966. Remember those autumn days you worked beside students to clear the lawn of leaves. You and your students worked, taught and learned together.

After the War you were Secretarial Department Head and you've held other positions of responsibility at Davenport as well. You contributed and received in bountiful measure.

We salute you and look forward to your continuing services on this campus.

Our Founder

Our institution reflects the involvement of a great leader. Few if any teachers can point to as many hours spent in individual attention, help, and counseling with students in academic, financial, or personal difficulty—students needing inspiration—students in doubt—than could M. E. Davenport. He was an outstanding teacher who strongly cared about each student. It is true that he was an unusually capable and creative administrator which is revealed in the record of steady growth of his institution; but first and foremost was his devotion to the activities of the classroom, as evidenced by the teaching schedule he carried for forty of the fifty years he was president. A phrase once stated by M. E. Davenport has become the motto of the institution—Make a Living—Make a Life—Make a Contribution.
